Charles and Camilla: The Relationship

Basic personalities

Camilla and Charles have compatible basic personalities. Both of them interpret life from an emotional standpoint, both are introverted and tend to hide or guard their innermost needs and longings. The concern is that they may be heavy together, imagine things, collect slights and suppress their needs. If something goes wrong Camilla tends to become moody and to feel sorry for herself and Charles easily becomes negative and sarcastic. To deal with this they must learn to talk together, on a regular basis, about those things that displease them. They must try to cheer each other up, instead of "sinking into silence". On a positive note, they should be able to understand each other quite easily, sometimes without using words. Together they are emotionally astute and sensitive, a fact that can be used to good effect in psychology, child-rearing or helping other people. To be happy together they need security and continuity, but they must also remember to do something new on a regular basis. (Sun Cancer/Scorpio)

Emotions, home and habits

Camilla and Charles have contrasting emotions. Camilla is conservative and needs to have security regarding her family and to stay in touch with nature. She is caring and protective. Charles is positive and restless and does not like routine. He needs to travel to keep his emotions alive. The concern is that they may find it difficult to adjust to each others habits. Charles doesn't like habits that are repetitive and restrict his freedom. Camilla likes routine activities around the home. Charles tends to be impulsive and expressive emotionally, whereas Camilla is sensitive and often secretive. The differences may cause irritation and lead to flare ups. To avoid this and be fulfilled they need to make compromises and create a lifestyle that combines security, comfort and absence of routine. Together they should travel and stay in touch with nature. Their ideal home should have a view and a garden and ideally they should also own a caravan or a houseboat. (Moon Cancer/Sagittarius)

Mental relationship

Camilla and Charles have similar minds, are emotional and feel what's right or wrong, but may sometimes find it difficult to put their impressions into words. Both of them are imaginative. If something is wrong they tend to put an "imaginative slant" to the story, become emotional and not communicate together in a rational manner. Another possibility is that they may "sink" mentally or become depressed or rather "heavy" together. On a positive note the similarity means they can understand each other quite easily, without necessarily using words. In order to function well together and be successful, they should pursue creative ventures and focus on music, art, literature and the movies. This will enable them to cooperate in a positive manner. Theirs is an imaginative and feeling-oriented mental combination, which means that creative activities, psychology, family issues or the helping professions are the areas to focus on. (Mercury Cancer/Scorpio)

Love and social relations

Camilla and Charles have contrasting love-emotions. Camilla is conservative and cautious in the ways she expresses her emotions, but may hide this behind a cool front. Charles is positive in his attitude and loves to meet new people, but doesn't like restrictions or a social routine. Together they are likely to be volatile and passionate, but not very stable as their different needs may easily create some complications. The main concern is that the conservative and cautious nature of Camilla may clash with the restless and freedom-loving nature of Charles. Their way of expressing love is also different. To be fulfilled together they need to make compromises, try to have romance in the home, light candles, listen to music etc, but also travel together and create romance in different settings. Socially they need to cultivate old friends, but also meet new people and expand their social horizons or find a balance between the old and the new. (Venus Cancer/Sagittarius)

Work and assertiveness

Camilla and Charles have compatible assertive energies. They are different in the sense that Camilla is mentally oriented and likes to work on a variety of projects. Charles is flamboyant and idealistic. He tends to be bossy and likes to be at the center of activities, tackling lively and creative projects. Charles likes to act spontaneously and Camilla to be on the move. This means they are not likely to be organized or follow a rigid schedule when working together. The main concern is that together they may create grand schemes and ideas and possibly forget to look at the practicalities. They therefore need to be careful. This said, they should focus on working with ideas rather than, for example building houses and move around rather than sit still in an office all day. They will be most successful together if they focus on creative and mental activities and combine socializing, communication and idealism. Their projects and hobbies must be lively and entertaining. (Mars Gemini/Leo)

Charles: Female Images

Charles is compatible with lively and positive women who are willing to give him emotional space. He needs freedom and a lifestyle that allows him to travel, move about and tackle various projects. The women in his life must be able to accept this kind of lifestyle. This also includes the home and family.

Charles has to be excused from routine activities and responsibilities that demand a set time frame, like having meals always at the same time or other family rituals of a fixed nature. His ideal women need to be spontaneous and ready to adjust quickly to changes in plans, etc. His women also need to be good-tempered, as he likes to look at the positive side of life and isn't interested in discussions of a negative or too personal nature. In short, he is most compatible with positive, freedom-loving and flexible women.

(The Female)

The ideal lover for Charles is a cosmopolitan and adventurous woman. He likes to learn from people and needs his relationships to expand his horizons. He can't stand restrictions or demanding obligations. When things begin to fall into a predictable pattern, he starts to lose interest. This is something his lover needs to understand and accept. Charles needs freedom and space to meet new people. This means that his woman has preferably to be spontaneous, creative and flexible. She mustn't be jealous or possessive. And it is beneficial if she likes to travel and explore the world. It's also good if she hasn't the same background as his, as the relationship will be stronger if she can teach him new customs, etc. In short, Charles needs a woman who challenges him, is a bit difficult, doesn't do as she is told and is thus able to surprise him and keep their relationship alive.

(The Female Lover)

Camilla: Male Images

Camilla likes the men in her life to be sensitive and emotional or able to relate to her moods and feelings, and understand her without necessarily having things spelled out or explained in words. She also likes her men to be old-fashioned or masculine and protective in behavior towards her and her family. She needs to be given a sense of security and stability. This means that Camilla is most compatible with practical men who have their feet planted firmly on the ground, are shrewd and tenacious, but also able to give and receive affections. In short men who like to have strong ties with their families and are able to create material comfort. (The Male)

Camilla likes her lover to be intelligent, versatile and lively; friendly and positive, but also cool and independent. She would quickly fall out of love with a guy who is ill-informed or narrow-minded. The road to her heart is through the mind, meaning that she needs to respect the intellectual capacity of her man. Love must be a fusion of two like minds and not only physical sex. She likes to discuss a variety of things, share information and learn. At the same time she likes her man to be independent, as she needs freedom and not a relationship of dependency and restrictions. In short her ideal lover is independent and intellectual, a guy who likes to move about and tackle a variety of projects, with the result that life with him is lively, entertaining and educational. (The Male Lover)

Animus and anima

In our minds and hearts we have images of our ideal partner. These images, called animus and anima, reflect our needs, longings and desires. These images are twofold. The male is both a father and a lover. The female is both a mother and a lover. If you are in a relationship with a person who does not conform to the images you have of your ideal partner, it's likely that the relationship will be stressful and ultimately unfulfilling.

Golden Rules

To be able to love another person, you must love yourself. To give love, you must have love in your hearth.

Seek self-knowledge. If you know yourself, you know what you need from your relationships. If you carry unresolved issues from your past, they will surface and cause problems.

Respect your partner and accept him or her for what he or she is. Don't demand that your partner becomes a mirror for your own ego.

Remember to communicate, listen to each other and talk together. Resolve disagreements right away. Don't collect slights and misunderstandings.

Use I-messages, not you-messages when communicating. Explain how you feel about things, don't tell others what they are thinking, feeling or doing.

Look for win-win results in your relationships. They won't be successful and long-lasting if one person wins and the other one loses.

Respect people who disagree with you, because they are the ones who challenge you and help you to grow.

It is through love that you transcend your boundaries, get to know intimately the life of other people and thus grow and learn about yourself and life
